

RESCUED

After 46 Long Days of Most Exquisite Mental Agony

BURIED MINERS SAVED

By Heroic Efforts of Them- selves and Comrades on the Surface

Bells and Whistles in Nevada Town Herald the Joyful News Sustained Through Pipe.

Ely, Nev., Jan. 20.—After having been entombed 46 days in the Alpha shaft of the Citron mine, A. D. Boyley, P. J. Brown and Fred McDonald have been rescued. At 8:30 o'clock Saturday night Bailey was brought out. Fourteen minutes later McDonald came to the surface, while ten minutes later Brown was brought up. Whistles all over the district blew loudly, while crowds cheered in the streets of Ely and every bell in the town was ringing.

"Ah," This was the first exclamation of Bailey when he reached the outer air. Without another word he tottered forward into the arms of his comrades who stood ready to assist him.

"By George, it certainly seems fine to be out of that hell hole," said Fred McDonald as he was led away telling his brother in a high pitched voice of his terrible experience.

"Say, somebody give me a chew o' tobacco," said Brown. "I'm on the bum all right."

All of the men were supremely happy.

To the anxious crowd waiting around the shaft mouth, the bell signalled "one, two, three—hoes away," and upon realization of his fact a loud cheer burst forth from the throng. Suddenly the basket rose to the surface. In it was one of the rescue parties supporting Bailey. His first coherent question as he was being half led, half carried to the shaft house was about his wife.

Bailey, Jon declared himself sufficiently rested to make the trip home, where he went soon afterward, supported on either side by friends.

On the morning of December 4 McDonald, Brown and Bailey and two Greeks were working in the bottom of the three compartments shaft 85 feet below the pump station and 1085 feet below the surface. The cave-in occurred at 9 o'clock. The cable used to haul the cage from the third compartment of the shaft snapped and thousands of tons of rock debris and timbers fell down into the shaft. From the bottom of the compartment in which the men were working to the pumping station, a distance of 84 feet, a series of rickety ladders offered the only means of escape. With falling rocks and timbers streaming down upon them the five men struggled up these ladders. Half way up falling timbers knocked the two Greeks from the ladders, killing them.

Bailey, McDonald and Brown managed to reach the pump station. Its well timbered roof withstood the rock and timber that came down the shaft and offered them shelter and safety. Here for the first day after the cave-in the men crouched, while at intervals they could hear the rocks and timbers crashing above them.

At first it was thought all the men had perished, but 24 hours after the cave-in the three men who occupied the pumping station managed to make themselves heard by tapping on the six inch water pipe that stretched from the pumping station to the surface. It was this pipe that was the means of saving the lives of the three men. When communication was established with the world above and the men had made known the fact that they were still alive, food and drink was immediately lowered through the pipe. A large supply was sent down as it was thought the pipe communication might be cut off before the rescuing party could reach the imprisoned men but throughout their weeks of imprisonment this has been in daily use.

A portable telephone was lowered and the men were able to talk with the people above. The telephone has been in almost constant use, the friends sending them by the news of the outside world and messages of cheer.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK PASSENGER TRAIN

New Martinsville, W. Va., Jan. 20.—An alleged attempt to wreck a B. & O. passenger train at Porter Falls, six miles south of here, failed by Engineer J. W. Bull seeing a large boulder placed on the track, in time to stop the train just as the pilot of his engine struck the obstruction.

Samuel McCormick, recently discharged as a section hand was found in hiding nearby and was arrested. Most of the passengers were thrown from their seats by the sudden stop but no one was seriously hurt.

DIPLOMAT, STATESMAN AND EDITOR DIED SUDDENLY AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Press, former minister to Russia and postmaster general, died suddenly at his home in this city Sunday aged 65 years. Death was caused by heart trouble.

For about a month Mr Smith had been in poor health, but his condition had not been regarded as serious.

HON. CHARLES EMORY SMITH.

Following a dinner in New York on November 20 he suffered an attack of indigestion, which according to his physician, gave indications of heart trouble.

One week ago he was ordered to Atlantic City to recuperate. When he returned to his home here on Saturday night he appeared to be bright and cheerful.

Mrs. Smith attended church in the morning and on her return to the house Mr. Smith was found dead, lying across the bed. He had apparently been stricken while on his way to the bathroom.

POLICE

Say They Unearthed a Plot of An- archists

TO DESTROY WARSHIPS

In the Harbor of Rio Janeiro, Which They Frustrated.

Assurances Given the American Officers That They May "Rest Easy" as to Their Safety.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 20.—Officers of the American fleet are keeping commendably straight faces over the announcement by the Brazilian police that only the latter's vigilance is preventing anarchist violence against the visiting fighting vessels. It is the polite thing, of course, to express appreciation of the authorities' care for their welfare, and the Americans are expressing it in all their conversations with representatives of Brazilian representative officialdom. They are also accepting implicitly the police chief's assurance that they "can rest easy," as all conspirators have been driven into the interior.

Nobody seems to know much concerning the identity of Jean Fedher of Petropolis, the man to whom the Brazilians refer as the organizer of the plot, and there is a good deal of curiosity concerning the chances for his capture at Sao Paulo, where it is said here he is believed to have taken refuge.

On this information concerning the foreign anarchists who are supposed to have been working under Fedher's orders, the police will give out no details whatever. All they will admit is that they are searching Rio Janeiro, Petropolis, Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes with fine tooth combs for them.

Brazil is unquestionably very seriously impressed with its responsibilities in the matter, and evidently has no doubt that a real and exceedingly dangerous conspiracy exists, or existed until the police broke it up and frightened the plotters away from the visiting men-of-war's vicinity.

The American officers, blue jackets and marines are not allowing their danger to interfere with their comfort. The officers are kept busy with the constant round of entertainments and receptions in their honor and as many of the men are allowed ashore as the fleet's necessities will permit.

The chief of police gave out the following warning:

"Some time before the arrival of the American fleet at Rio Janeiro the Brazilian government received word from Washington and Paris advices that anarchists of different nationalities intended to damage one or several of the ships of the American fleet. The name and addresses of the conspirators were indicated by information previously from France and Germany. The police of this district are working with the police of Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes, and I am sure every precaution will be exercised and the most rigorous vigilance observed both on land and at sea to prevent any injury being done."

DICKERSON SHOWED GOOD SENSE IN NOT ACCOMPANYING JURY TO THE SCENE OF THE CRIME

Coshogton, Jan. 20.—"If Ben Dickerson had come out here with the jury he wouldn't have got back alive," was the message which came over the telephone to Coshogton Saturday morning. A crowd of about 100 people gathered at the scene of the murder of Catherine Hughes Friday afternoon as it was understood that the jury was coming on that day.

The twelve good men and true from Holmes county in whose hands Ben Dickerson's life will soon be placed, left the Mecca Hotel at 7:30 Saturday morning and climbed into livery rigs. Sheriff Bell, of Millersburg, ex-Sheriff Henry Clark of Cos-

BRYAN'S FRIENDS TRY TO PERSUADE HIM TO WITHDRAW

IF MANY BELIEVE HE CAN NOT BE ELECTED, HE WILL STEP ASIDE.

He is More Anxious for Triumph of
His Party Than for Personal Success.

Washington, Jan. 20.—There is no longer any question of the seriousness of the movement among Southern Democrats to induce Mr. Bryan to step aside and permit the nomination by the party of some man against whom there is none of the prejudice that exists in certain sections of the country against the Nebraska leader.

The most significant and prominent feature of the movement is that several Southern members of Congress whose loyalty to Mr. Bryan and admiration for him are unquestioned, are leaders in it and have undertaken to discuss with him the wisdom of his standing aside when he comes to Washington.

They will urge him as a loyal member for whom the party has done so much to recognize the plain facts of the situation as shown by the belief of some of his best friends that he cannot be elected, if nominated, whereas a man like Governor Johnson of Minnesota, Judge Gray of Delaware, or Senator Culbertson of Texas, would have a very good chance of success.

Mr. Bryan has already been in-shot, and the special court bailiffs accompanied the jury on the long drive through the thin coating of snow to the former home of Dickerson. Their horses were put up for the night and the whole crowd then walked over to the woods where Catherine Hughes breathed her last.

A complete survey of the premises, since devastated by a terrific cyclone was made and at 11:45 the jury returned to the home of T. S. Breneman, for dinner, after spending two hours at the scene of the murder. The jury was shown the spring where Mrs. Hughes went for water and the place where the sapling stood in which her body was found wedged.

forced of the sentiment among Southern Democrats in Congress and is said to have sent word to friends here, indicating a purpose on his part to stand aside if he finds that a considerable number of his friends, which he regards as real Democrats and loyal supporters of his own, are convinced that the chances of party success this year will be improved.

If he finds that a respectful number of sincere Democrats are anxious to try their chances with another leader this year, he will not allow his personal ambition to stand in their way. He is more anxious for the success of the party than for personal advancement.

WILL APPOINT COMMITTEE

To Investigate Charges Made by Senator Meek Regarding Trafficking in Certificates.

Columbus, Jan. 20.—The weeks' end visit to their homes has apparently impressed the members of the legislature with the importance attached by the people generally to Meek's school charges. This makes it probable that politics will not be allowed to interfere or block a thorough investigation. The West resolution for a joint investigating committee from the Senate and House will almost certainly pass the Senate Tuesday. If the House passes it unchanged it will mean a bi-partisan committee, two Democrats and a Republican from the Senate and two Republicans and a Democrat from the House. The Republican senator will probably be West. Among the Democrats mentioned are Senator Lamb, Howe and Gayman.

EVELYN

Again Tells Story Of Betrayal by White

REPORTERS MAY STAY

And Recital Was Given In Open Court This Morning.

Jerome Fights Hard to Keep the Young Wife's Testimony From Jury.

New York, Jan. 20.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw today retold in open court the story of her betrayal at the hands of Stanford White. This is the story which the defense says broke down Thaw's already weak mind and drove him to kill White in a fit of insane rage. Justice Dowling, as expected, refused Jerome's request to exclude the reporters. Dowling said that he doubted if the trial would be legal if newspaper representatives were barred, as the constitution guaranteed every person an open trial.

The publication of the details he said was a matter for the morals of the newspaper editors, and not for the court or counsel to pass upon. Jerome claimed it was preposterous to argue that Evelyn's story, told three years before the crime was committed was responsible for Thaw's insanity at the time of the murder if he was insane. Littleton contended that the story was material. Justice Dowling decided that under the law he could do nothing else than admit the story.

Evelyn thereupon started upon the recital of the story she claims she told Thaw in her room in the Park Hotel. During the recital the voice of the witness broke many times and on one or two occasions the tears rolled down her cheeks. Through it all, Thaw sat with his handkerchief to his eyes, his frame apparently convulsed with sobs. The testimony was merely a repetition of the story told in court at the first trial of drugged wine given Evelyn by White in Madison Square Tower; how she awoke and found herself unclothed; how White told her that she had done no more than other women she knew had done; of her subsequent visits to White. Evelyn told of her mother's trip to Pittsburg just before Evelyn's betrayal, and said White paid all the expenses. Evelyn testified that while she was telling the story, Thaw walked the floor, sobbed, clenched his hands and seemed crazed with grief and rage, and afterwards told her she was unfortunate and that she was not to blame; that he would marry her in spite of all if she would consent. She testified that she again refused to wed him and said she would go back on the stage.

When court recessed for lunch, Evelyn had told her story up to the night of the killing and was telling of White's entry into the restaurant when she was dining with Thaw. She had told how White came to see her after her return from Europe, of stories he and Attorney Hummel told her about Thaw, scolding and whipping girls, of her reconciliation with Thaw, of her living with him at New York hotels and in Europe, of two attempts at suicide Thaw had made, one at Monte Carlo, where he actually took laudanum, and of her marriage.

CHINAMEN ON TRIAL

Charged With Murder Growing Out of a Fend Over a Beautiful Slave Girl.

Boston, Jan. 20.—Nine Chinamen were simultaneously placed on trial here today, all charged with murder. The trial results from the Tong war last August, when a gang of Celestials walked through the streets of Chinatown shooting promiscuously at every citizen they met. Three were killed and several wounded. The feud has been traced back to St. Francisco, where it originated in a strife over the possession of a beautiful slave girl.

EASTERN

MAGNATES HAVING ALL KINDS OF TROUBLE IN FIGURING OUT NEW LEAGUE.

SALARY LIMIT POPULAR

Among All Minor League Managers—President Quinn Hits Right Note on Subject.

While the Western managers are resting comfortably after their hard labors well done, the Eastern magnates are just as much at sea as they were before the Cleveland meeting. What teams will comprise the new O. and P. league is the vexing question and none of the Easterners seem able to solve it.

A meeting was to be called yesterday for the purpose of going over the ground, and Canton and Erie were to send representatives, but nothing definite was done. Erie is trying to convince the other teams of the Interstate league that she ought to be allowed to go over to the O-P's without putting up the $2,500 demanded, but her talk has so far been wasted.

Canton is not going to do anything until she hears from the Central league meeting to be held in Ft. Wayne the 21st. In speaking of the present situation J. L. Ritchie, sporting editor of the Alton Beacon Journal says:

The Ohio State league clubs have bettered their position, financially and otherwise, and are equally well content with the present arrangements.

Under the master hand of Bobby Quinn the new league is being groomed and coached for a winning season. Certainly the western clubs are to be congratulated on their choice of a leader.

Mr. Quinn has been associated with base ball in the capacity of both player and manager for many years, and is a lover of sport for sport's sake. If there is any man who can steer the new organization to success, that man is Bobby Quinn.

It is to be hoped that Zanesville will be wise enough to steer clear of "Doc" Carson and his crew and give that P. O. M. outfit a wide berth—the wider the better. Zanesville by position and affiliation belongs to the new league. Zanesville has nothing in common with Grand Rapids, Terre Haute, South Bend or Ft. Wayne, and very little with Wheeling or Dayton, the two nearest Central league towns.

We wish them success in the new league. They deserve it. They play good clean ball down there—sport for sport's sake. And after all said and done that is the only kind that pays or has ever paid.

Pretty nice praise from probably the best posted sport writer over in the O-P league, isn't it? Ritchie is right, a sport for its own sake is all that counts when all is said and done. Most of necessity enter into the problem, but it enters into every factor and problem of everyday life, but it can be controlled—and it should.

President Quinn struck the right note when he mentioned a salary limit. That very thing has caused more sleepless nights and unnecessary worry to base ball magnates than any other thing that enters into the game. As a player and manager Quinn knows from personal observation what is the proper thing for a single team or a league, and long before he was mentioned as president he made his ideas known, and they were ideas of such a sound nature that they spread like wildfire into every base ball camp in the country.

The terms proposed for the new league that are now waiving, are thinking over what the president of the Ohio State league said, and the longer they think the better the proposition seems to the managers and backers. A salary limit of $1,800 is enough for a minor league to pay, lots of good players can be secured and the limit held to that. Managers all over the country are going to follow Quinn's ideas for the Ohio State league, and the result will mean that the game will be as fast, and the teams will make money.

In going further into the subject the Beacon Journal says: The "louding up" that was practiced by the clubs in the O. & P. last year was not good sportsmanship; it was not honest, and it did a great deal of harm to baseball throughout the circuit. It is to be hoped that the new league will profit by the experience of the old. President Charles Morton of the old O-P, will probably lose his job when the new league is formed. He will if John Boyle, proprietor of the Sunnyside hotel at Sharon has anything to do with it. Boyle has loyally supported the Sharon team, financially and otherwise, and he declares he will have nothing further to do with the team if Morton is elected president.

Should Richmond enter the Ohio State league, Sharon will have a berth of money coming from the team for the release of Pitcher Hunt, who played and managed the team last season. Hunt has a contract with Sharon but preferred to play independent ball and refused to report. Springfield has been given two weeks to raise enough money to land in the O. & P. league, and the promoters are hustling to get the "necessary."

Hamilton was visited by President Quinn and President Sturgis of the Mansfield team. The town looks good, and the fans seem to favor the Ohio State league instead of the Ohio-Indiana circuit. They will settle the matter in a few days in that town, and the chances are in favor of the new league.

Muncie is a good town and in the line of the old Interstate the town is no money. She has been flirting with the O. & P. league and may yet like a berth.

Sandusky ought to be a good ball town, and for the past two years she has been trying to land in the O-P. Her backers want players for nothing and that plan does not meet with the approval of the other managers. She was not considered in the Ohio State league for that very reason. Good men can't be secured for $500 or $600 a month for the limit.

Lajoie, player-manager of the Cleveland "Naps," thinks Columbus will win the pennant in the American Association. He speaks well of Ebbetts, Thomas, Noah, Parsons and Laddie Link and thinks they will be big factors in the Senators line-up.

The failure of the Interstate to reorganize disbands the league, according to President Baumeister of the Erie club, and for that reason he claims Erie will be allowed to go with the O. & P. teams.

If the six teams of the Central fail to throw Canton out at their Ft. Wayne meeting, poor old Zanesville will be stung again. She seems to get the lemon quite often for some reason. Hogan and the fans talk in their sleep about the Central, and if she does land, well it will be up to the fans to furnish the money for long jumps and big salaries.

Eight clubs are wanted in the new O-P league, and only six are in sight. East Liverpool and Steubenville want to break away from the P. O. M. and so with the proposed league. Lots of trouble yet in sight for the league but they have our best wishes for the ultimate success of the new organization. One thing they do need is a new president, and the new towns will probably demand one. Morton's usefulness has long since passed away and he is a heavy weight for a new league to carry.

YEAR 1908

Is Bad One for Baseball—All Holidays Come on Saturday—Fats Crimp in Cash Box.

Any ball club president who happens to take a "pique" at the 1908 calendar is liable to get sore at the way certain dates during the baseball season have been arranged by the calendar maker. Fourth of July and Decoration day fall on Saturdays.

Sundays and Sundays are good days for big crowds at the ball park without any special attraction. When holidays fall on Tuesday, for instance, the receipts are big and then on Saturday the usual Saturday crowd swells the treasury. But when holidays fall on Saturday—Bingo! There's a crimp in the cash box.

ZANESVILLE

May Get Stung by Central League Team—Canton May Stick to Its Franchise.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 20.—The annual meeting of the Central Baseball league will be held at Ft. Wayne, Ind., tomorrow, and while it is concluded that President Carson will be declared as president of the league, other matters are to be discussed.

which will make the meeting one of the most interesting in the history of the Central.

As a matter of fact, interest in this meeting centers upon Canton and Zanesville. At Columbus, during the past week, plans were laid to secure, if possible, the Zanesville Baseball company to enter the new Ohio league which is in course of formation. Inasmuch as Zanesville is not yet in the Central, those back of the new Ohio league have hopes of securing the team. The Canton-Zanesville proposition is to be gone over at the Fort Wayne convocation, and if six managers vote to oust Canton, the metropolis of Stark county will get out and Zanesville will enter.

In the event of Canton remaining in the Central league, Zanesville will be "stung" on its original plans, and it will have to look for a new location. This may be found in the new Ohio league. Should Zanesville fail to enter the new league, then it is said that Hamilton, O., or Muncie, Ind., will drop in line for the remaining towns in the new circuit of eight cities.

John Ganzel will manage the Cincinnati National league team next season, according to a statement made here by President Garry Herrmann.

NEWARK

Much Desired in Ohio State Polo League—Marion a Poor Town for the Game.

"You can take it from me," said Bobby Quinn of Marion Friday night, that the Marion polo team is for sale, transfer or trade. The people over there have not taken to the game and as it is a money losing venture, I am looking for a suitable place to put the team. If I had a crowd over there as large as the one here tonight I would go crazy, and this is the smallest I have ever seen in Mansfield. Yes, Marion will be transferred if I can find a good town."

None but live towns are wanted in the Ohio State and only with such can success be insured. Newark would be an excellent addition but it seems the risk is not centrally located.

BAPTISTS WIN

Margin of Two Points, But It Was Enough to Do the Business With Ohio Wesleyan.

Granville, Jan. 20.—In one of the speediest and most exciting basketball games ever played on the local floor, Ohio Wesleyan's crack team went down in defeat before the Denison five by a score of 31 to 29 Saturday night.

The outcome of the game was in doubt until the last moment, as at no time during the contest was either team six points ahead of its rival. Both teams showed excellent form and splendid coaching, the Methodists having the better of the Baptists in passing, but Rohrer's aggregation putting it over their rivals in speed and team work. Little for Denison and Stauffer for Wesleyan were easily the stars of the of the evening. Coach Rickey of Wesleyan attributes

GRANVILLE

Granville, O., Jan. 20.—One of the most enjoyable affairs in K. P. circles here this winter was the social and dance given in the handsome lodge rooms Friday evening. Arrangements had been made for the function for some time past, and it proved a complete success in every particular. There was a large attendance of the local members and their ladies, while quite a number from Newark were present. During the evening an appetizing luncheon was served.

An exceedingly interesting session of the Denison Language Association was held in Burton Hall last Friday afternoon. "Carl Schurz" was the subject discussed, and several well prepared papers on this illustrious man were read.

On Saturday evening Misses Esther Field and Miss Jessie Street entertained a number of friends at the home of Mrs. Street, on which occasion a fine course dinner was served. Those present were Elva Brakeman, Marion Rose, Dee Schumann, Gertrude Phillips, Lottie Graham, Esther Crooks, Elonda Watts, Agnes Walsh, Ruth Akers and Judith Nick. All had a splendid time.

Miss Eva Wilkinson of Postoria, who has been visiting here for a few days, returned home Saturday, after having had a most delightful visit.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Wilson entertained the ladies of the faculty most charmingly in honor of Miss Jessie Jones of Philadelphia.

Thomas DeWolf, of Bucyrus, was here on business Saturday.

Mr. Huddleson of Worthington, was in the village Sunday, the guest of Miss Ruth Levering Jones.

Mr. J. M. Amos of Cambridge, was in the village the latter part of the week, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. K. A. Barker.

Miss Ella Hughes of Cleveland who has been visiting here for some time left for Columbus Saturday where she will visit for a few days before returning home.

On Saturday evening Miss Blanche Black entertained most charmingly the contestants for last year's Sheperdson History prize, at her home on College street. During the evening an elaborate supper was served, and a most enjoyable time was had by all.

NATURE FAKIR

IS ROOSEVELT, SAYS DEAN OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE OF CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY.

When He Speaks of the "Redwoods of the Sierras," Which Tree Does Not Grow There at All.

San Francisco, Jan. 20.—When President Roosevelt, in writing for a monthly magazine, referred to the "Redwoods of the Sierras," he was not aware that he had unintentionally placed himself in the position of a "nature fakir," because, according to painters, poets, professors, club women and students of forestry, not a single redwood is to be found in the Sierras.

"The President confounded the two classes of trees," said Prof. E. J. Wicks, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of California. "The redwood is prevalent only on the coast of the state and is to be found only in the fog belt, which stretches from Santa Cruz to Del Norte. The Sequoia Gigantica, to which the President evidently refers, grows in the Sierras."

NO PRIMARY WILL BE HELD IN LICKING

MEETING OF CENTRAL COMMITTEE HELD MONDAY BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

TAFT MEN FOR PRIMARY

While "Antis" Wanted the Eleven State Delegates to be Named by the Committee.

"General" George B. Cox Hamilton won out, and the committee is now naming delegates to the state convention. No primaries will be held. Members of the Republican county central committee to the number of forty-six met Monday at noon in the dining apartments of the Hotel Warden to settle the question of the manner of choosing delegates to the Republican state convention which will be held at Columbus on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 3 and 4.

Eleven delegates and the same number of alternates are to be chosen and the committee pitched on the method of doing so.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and colored porters were stationed at the entrance to zealously guard information which might be obtained by eavesdroppers.

Enough is known however, to warrant the statement that a hot fight was on between the two factions of the party in this county. One led by the Taft people favored a primary election, and a resolution was introduced to that effect naming Tuesday, February 11, as the day on which primaries should be held in all the voting precincts in the county.

The opposition favor having the committee name the delegates and they were championed by "General" George B. Hamilton.

A merry war is on in the G. O. P. in Licking and despite the efforts of the leaders to suppress it the fact is well known that there will be much scratching and pulling of hair before the turbulent waters are calmed.

ART OF CONVERSATION.

How to Talk in an Entertaining and Correct Manner.

It is strange that we are not all more proficient in the art of conversation when, if we stop to think it over, we realize that it plays so important a part in one's social life. The first point to remember is to try to moderate the voice. A naturally high pitched harsh voice can easily be trained so that eventually it will be soft and musical. Every one appreciates the sweet, toned voices of the Englishwomen, and there is no reason why the voices of the American women should not be the same if proper attention is paid to their training, says Elizabeth Biddle in the Philadelphia Press.

We should also try to speak correctly, avoid all slang and provincialism and enunciate all the words as clearly as possible.

If one wishes to be really entertaining in conversation she must not only have culture and a ready wit, but she must have sympathy, simplicity and sincerity and, above all, a real interest in her subject.

The following rules are safe ones to follow:

Look people in the face when you talk to them. Talk often, but never long, so as to give others an opportunity of expressing their opinions, and show a courteous respect for another's point of view. In arguments give fair play, and if the discussion continues beyond the limit of good taste let the matter drop.

Sometimes, you know, "silence is golden." This is unquestionably true in regard to gossiping.

"Talk of things, not people," is a safe rule to follow. And if one must talk of people tell of their good qualities, not their faults and failings. Indiscriminate praise is absurd and weakens one's judgment.

If you are easily embarrassed, you should force yourself to talk and become accustomed to the sound of your own voice, but do not feel obliged to talk incessantly. Try to be perfectly natural and at ease and always ready with small courtesies, even with children and servants.

A sympathetic and responsive listener is as much to be desired as one who can talk well.

How to Buy a Couch.

There is not a piece of furniture so difficult to buy as a couch, for only those who know a great deal about furniture can tell you what composes a couch, and one hears that the deception is in a miserable wooden frame filled with a little of everything and covered with material which soon fades, says the Chicago News. Believe it that pantslike outwears genuine leather. It stays nicer, is more easily renewed and is much easier to use for upholstery purposes than almost any other kind of material. You should look on the underside of a couch before buying it and see whether it is well stayed with braces and not merely lined with thin burlap, which shifts shavings and sand just every time the couch is moved or touched. There is no economy in buying a cheap couch, for it can't stand to reason that the covered framework is the refuse wood of a factory.

How to Mend Matings.

Often in moving a heavy piece of furniture the matting on the floor will have an ugly hole torn in it, says the Chicago News. The torn place is usually where it is the most noticeable and cannot be covered with a rug. There is an excellent way to remedy this defect by darning the place with raffia of colors to match the matting straw. It is much better than threads, and the work can be neatly done. It may be necessary to run heavy cords across the work through which the raffia is to be woven. The threads are sewed in place with a large darning needle. Torn places on the edge of matting can be remedied in the same manner. It is best to sew matting together with a loose stitch, using very heavy linen thread for the purpose, but where this cannot be done then use the regular matting tacks or ordinary tacks, placing first one side, then the opposite side, to prevent the baggy appearance which so often occurs. Never use a claw hammer to lift tacks from matting, since it invariably breaks the straw. Get an old blunt chisel, place it beneath the matting and tack head, pound gently with the hammer and pry the tack up. This will draw the tack out straight and leave the matting unbroken.

CENSUS OF OUR BIRDS

Biological Survey's Plan to Protect Them More Effectively.

TO APPEAL TO CONGRESS.

Necessary Authority and Money Needed Will Be Asked—Start Already Made in Indiana Toward Enumeration of Songsters.

A census of the bird population is badly wanted by the United States biological survey, and it is quite likely one will be attempted, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Globe. Almost every other kind of census has been set on foot in the United States, but thus far there has never been a count of the robins, the swallows, the sparrows, the bluejays and other ornithological varieties.

Nobody has the faintest idea how many birds are in the United States or what kind of birds are the most numerous. There are various substantial reasons, as the officials of the biological survey say, why a bird census should be taken, and it is expected the necessary authority and whatever money is needed for the task will be asked of congress when the regular appropriation for the agricultural department, of which the biological survey is a part, is made up.

Protection of the birds of the country in a much more effective fashion than is now afforded is the object back of the proposed bird census. Now, there is little means of knowing what is happening to the birds of different species, whether one is increasing or diminishing in numbers. Nor can it be reckoned whether certain species are as numerous as is economically advantageous.

Many birds are of value to the farmer and to humankind generally, and scientists who make a study of the subject are able to say about how many there should be per acre or to any given stretch of territory for the purpose of doing the most good and the least injury. If there is to be better protection for birds, it will be worth while to know all possible about the number there are in the country of different varieties.

Already a start has been made toward enumeration of the birds. It has been made in Indiana, under the direction of Professor Forbes, well known in biological circles. It has to be done by observation from one end of the state to the other, seeing for themselves how numerous relatively are the different varieties and consulting with residents freely as to the number of birds observed about farmhouses and other residences, the number of mating pairs and the like.

The different states are doing a great deal for bird protection, but there still remains much to be done. Large numbers are ruthlessly slaughtered. One of the chief instrumentalities for killing off birds are the Italian colonies that are scattered about the country, along railroads in repair or construction principally. Birds are killed for food by the million in Italy, and the Italians do the same thing here.

Before there can be any adequate bird protection it will be necessary to have international understanding and regulations on the subject. Suggestions to undertake bird protection in an international way have been made from various countries, but this government has given them little countenance. The fact is, however, that great numbers of the birds of the United States are killed off while they are away at their winter resorts in South America. They are slaughtered there largely for millinery uses, and legions of birds that go down to the equatorial regions when winter comes on return only as ornaments to be put on the hats of women.

DAZZLING SOCIETY BALL.

Goldfish Caught by Guests and Song Birds Warble at Debutante's Debut.

With loosed song birds fluttering about in the rare exotic foliage and shimmering goldfish swimming in real pools, Miss Dorothy Randolph of Philadelphia, one of the most feted and petted debutantes of the season, made her debut the other night at a ball given at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia by her father, Philip S. P. Randolph, says the New York American.

Conservative estimates place the cost of the affair at $150,000, far above anything of the kind that has gone before, exceeding the famous butterfly ball of Miss Paul by about $50,000. The scene was a beautiful woodland, with rustic bridges over real pools and imitation ones of mirrors, surrounded by wonderful plants and flowers. Fountains were flowing, canaries warbling in the foliage and all kinds of goldfish swimming in the miniature ponds and streams. Twelve hundred guests were unanimous in the opinion that the whole thing was "exquisite."

Departing from precedent in some other affairs of the kind, the little singers were carefully attended to.

Airship to Carry a Hundred Count Zeppelin Intends shortly to construct an airship capable of carrying 100 passengers, says a special Berlin cable dispatch to the New York Times. His last airship, 137 yards long and 13 yards in diameter, carried 11 passengers and 3,900 pounds of ballast. The new airship will have to be only twenty-six yards longer and three yards greater in diameter for his carrying capacity to be increased sufficiently to carry 100 persons.

MAIL DELIVERY

ABOUT THE SQUARE AND IN THE BUSINESS DISTRICT OF THE CITY.

Hours of Collection Given for Benefit of Business Men—Another Carrier Needed.

For the benefit of the business firms about the square the Advocate has endeavored to learn the exact hours of delivery and collection of mail from the boxes in the business district. There seems to be considerable misunderstanding as to the matter, and certain of these business men are desirous of knowing the exact hours so that they can be depended upon.

The hours of collection are as follows:

First collection about the square, 6.40 a. m.

Second, 9 a. m.

Third, 11 a. m.

Fourth, 4.30 p. m.

Fifth, 6 p. m.

First delivery, by Carrier Knuppinger, including the south side of the square, South Third street to the railroad tracks, and West Main to Fourth, 7.30 a. m.; second, 9 a. m.; and third 11 a. m.

Carrier Alexander, whose route includes North Second street, North Third street to Locust and the north side, delivers at 7.45 and 10 a. m., and 2.15 p. m.

The time of arrival at a certain box varies according to the amount of matter to be collected or delivered, as the case may be. Thus, when matter is unusually heavy, Carrier Knuppinger is compelled to omit one of his morning collections, that is the last one, at 10 a. m.

If there was another carrier assigned to the central business portion of the city, mail deliveries could be facilitated to the great advantage of business men. But this office is doubtless unable at present, to obtain any more carriers from the department.

New York, Jan. 20—Charged with murder and pillage, for which the Russian government seeks his extradition, Jan Pouden was arraigned before Commissioner Shields. His examination was set for Wednesday, being postponed at the request of the defense.

On the other hand, the agents of the government insist that Pouden is a dangerous criminal and that he has at least four murders charged against him. He is a mild mannered man, who gives his name as Martin Martinson.

YOUNG GIRL ADMITS THEFT OF $53 CASH BUT DENIES TAKING A CHECK FOR $700

A Companion Implicated, and Both Women Are Bound Over and Are Now in the County Jail.

Rhoda McGee Alias Mora Tells Thrilling Story of Her Life Disguised as a Boy Tramp--Arrested for Hold-Up--Chief Sheridan Very Ill--Police News.

"I didn't get the check, but I did get the money," admitted Rhoda McGee or Mora, in police court Monday morning when asked whether she was guilty or not guilty of the theft of $53 in cash and a check for $700 from William C. Erdice in a resort last Tuesday night.

Rhoda was arrested in Columbus, Friday, after a warrant had been sworn to for her arrest by Mr. Erdice. Gertrude Nethers, 17, who was with her in Columbus, was also arrested and slated "held for investigation." They were brought to Newark Saturday by Chief Sheridan. When she was called she denied any knowledge of the crime and after an affidavit had been sworn to charging her with being an accomplice, she pleaded not guilty.

Erdice, who was present, strongly implicated her in the theft and her story was very much mixed up, she contradicting herself several times. Rhoda was bound over in the sum of $500 and Gertrude in the sum of $300. The girls were then taken to the county jail by Officers Swank and Brown.

The Nethers girl came to Newark about two years ago from a country home and her life has been rather uneventful, but she is opposite from that of her friend Rhoda. She is a native of Newark and according to her story, has "lived fast and traveled far." She is only 18 years old now, but her experiences would fill a large book and make a very interesting story.

She first came in the lime light several years ago when she made a balloon ascension at Idlewild park. This she followed with a marriage to a Japanese by the name of Mora, who ran a chop suey "joint" here. Life was not happy so she took to the road. Cutting her hair short and donning boys clothing, she became well known among the tramps in the Eastern states, who during her life among them thought she was a boy.

She enjoys telling her story of rides on a coal car tank, the rattlers, and the head end of many trains. Her favorite "stamping ground" was along the lines of the New York Central railroad, but she also traveled west as far as Omaha. Her stories of life along the road are vividly pictured and as she sat with her red hair, waving about her ears, dressed in her dark gray sweater and her blue skirt, a cigarette hanging loosely from her lips, the prison bars faded away and again the smoke and rattle of the trains seemed to surround her as she rode and rode to no place in particular, just "bummin' it."

"I don't care if they lock me up now, if they only let me out when spring comes," she said to her hearers, as she finished the narrative.

Edward Reckert of Columbus, who was arrested on an affidavit sworn to by Joe Finkle, a peddler, was then called. Reckert and another man stopped Joe Finkle and Harry Kissane, one day last week when the latter boys were driving to Granville to visit the college and dispose of their stock. The men stopped them on the road and ordered them to turn back, hitting Finkle and threatening to kill them if they kept on to the college town. However the Newark lads were not bluffed and kept on to their destination. After hearing the story Mayor Atherton fined Reckert $1 and costs.

Four drunks, brought in at different times Saturday night by Officers Woolf, McClure and Brooke were given the usual fine.

Chief Sheridan is confined to his bed and is threatened with pneumonia, he having contracted a severe cold which has settled on his lungs.

A Hebron drunk, who refused absolutely to give his name to the police, fell into the canal between Fifth and Sixth street Sunday night about six o'clock, and if some passersby hadn't taken a hand the victim of the hop juice would furnish some undertaking a job. The man was pulled out and taken to the home of John Offenbaker, 127 Canal street, where his clothing was dried and the man prepared to be sent to his home. Some one called the police and when the patrol arrived the drunk decided he would go home, so nothing was done with him.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do You Fear Consumption?

When we take into consideration the fact that one out of every seven in this climate die of consumption, is it any wonder that it is feared by the people of Newark, who have weak lungs and chronic colds and coughs? A famous London physician has for years urged his patients, when the slightest tendency to consumption appeared, to take all the cod liver oil possible into their systems, and physicians everywhere have recognized its value for coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption and all wasting diseases, but, unfortunately, few could take it and derive the full benefit from its use, on account of the indigestible grease which it contained.

We want every person in Newark, to know the value of our new cod liver preparation, Vinol. It actually contains in a concentrated form all of the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cod fish, without a drop of oil or grease to upset the stomach and retard its work.

Therefore, wherever old fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions will do good, Vinol will do far more good. We guarantee Vinol will improve the appetite, strengthen digestion, make rich, red blood, create strength, cure chronic coughs and colds and strengthen weak lungs.

If Vinol fails to give satisfaction to our customers, we return money without question. Frank D. Hall, Druggist, Newark, O.

"JOHN PAUL JONES COMMEMORATION."

HOUDON BUST OF JOHN PAUL JONES

MUMMIFIED HEAD OF JOHN PAUL JONES

COMPOSITE OF THE TWO PRECEDING PRINTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Unusual illustrations are contained in the "John Paul Jones Commemoration," just published by authority of Congress. In addition to containing many new facts about John Paul Jones, the volume is handsomely illustrated. The frontispiece is a half-tone of the Jones bust by Houdon, from the National Academy of Design. A cast of this bust furnished the measurements by which General Porter, then ambassador to Paris, was able to identify the body in 1806. There is also a picture of the J. Pierpont Morgan bust of Jones, said to have cost $50,000.

Another remarkable picture is a composite print of the Trosadero bust and the exhumed head, showing the agreement between the two. A full report from General Porter and the scientists who identified the body is incorporated in a book which was compiled by Charles W. Stewart, superintendent of library and naval records in the Navy department.

"RUN AWAY FROM HOME TO FIGHT INDIANS."

"YOUNG MEN CONTINUE TO RUN AWAY FROM HOME TO BECOME TRAMPS."

"DISAPPEAR FROM THEIR HOMES TO GO ON THE STAGE."

"AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS, INQUIRING FOR MISSING RELATIVES."

New York, Jan. 20.—In all the persons who during each year disappear from their homes and places of business in New York, leaving behind them no clues by means of which their whereabouts can be traced, could be assembled in one locality, it would be found there were enough of them to found a good sized city.

The title of one of the novels that is popular this year would be an appropriate name for the refuge to which countless tired, nervous, worried, despondent or desperate men and women flee. This novel is called "The Port of Missing Men."

Records kept by the police and charitable organizations show that the number of persons who disappear is large. It includes the man who has become tired of supporting his wife and children, and who goes away to begin life anew. It includes the trusted employee who has abused his trust, and fled to escape punishment. In the ranks of those who have disappeared cannot be ascribed wholly to themselves.

the principal industries. And they are all carried on in a large scale. Every commodity is high priced. Butter is 45 cents a pound and other things equally high. About the only amusement is a weekly free for all dance, and an occasional play at the opera house.

I took up my abode at "lumber-jack" boarding house and like it right well. There are two characteristic things about such a place. There is a superabundance of grub and profanity. I have been with some pretty rough, profane men in my day, but this camp beats anything I ever knew of before. They swear only with their lips. At heart they are whole and honest.

And now what do I think of the West? It is too great a country to be described. It is too new. The next generation will better understand and more correctly estimate its worth.

"A third of a century has gone into making the Westerner of today, and it has evolved a type differing much from that of the beginning, and often corresponding little in its chief characteristics with the popular conception distant communities have formed of it."

Those who toiled westward to the gold fields of '49 were a peculiar type. Those who followed at the close of the Civil war were another type, and those who came during these latter years are still another type. They form, together, the great West. And to these must be added a sturdy immigration from Europe, Germans from the south, Scandinavians from the north, English, Canadians and Irish.

The present day westerner is not a dreamer. He deals in real things. Out of the toil of years has come a clear headed, stout hearted, frank faced man of the plains. "He trusts not in luck, but in sense and system and preparation; he builds not for a day, but for decades; he is manifest on the distant reaches of the 'short grass country'; he is the ruler of the prairie village; he walks the pavements of progressive cities; he believes in colleges as well as in corner lots; he asks sanity and high ideals in the plans for the growth of the West.

Tanned by the prairie winds, warmed by the glowing sunshine of the level lands, standing where meet the trade currents of North and South, with command over both, the New Westerner has in his grasp a glorious destiny, and he seems capable of living up to its possibilities."

Leipsic, Jan. 20.—The incorporated village of West Leipsic, which joins this city, will hold an election Tuesday at which time the voters will decide on the future status of the village. These three questions are presented: annexation to Leipsic; retaining of charter and return to a governing control; to continue as a corporation. The village has about 500 inhabitants and the voters are about evenly divided. The first proposition is to annex the village to the city. The second is that the village will lose its postoffice.

The Advocate's Evening Story

HIS WHITE HAIR.

After leaving school I studied law and went to Colorado to practice. I knew enough of "Laramie" and law to inspire confidence in a mining people and was eventually elected judge. My principal duties were to settle such disputes as were not settled by the revolver.

One morning a man was brought before me on a charge of attempted murder. He was a trim built fellow of twenty-five, of refined appearance, and what surprised me beyond measure was that his hair was white as snow. There were three witnesses against him—a miner, Tom Mason and his two assistants, Pete Galloway and Steve Tucker. Mason was a pitiful sight to behold. His left arm was in a sling. His right leg, in a splint, was supported by a crutch. A bandage covered his eye. Whatever of his face was not covered with patches was of many hues. The condition of his two assistants was not much better.

The prisoner gave his name as Albert Parkinson. After hearing a statement from his accusers I called upon him for his story.

"Judge," he said, "I'm a mining engineer. I spent four years at college in the scientific department, then went to Germany to study my profession. From there I returned last month and came out here to get some practical experience. This man Mason accepted an offer from me to work in the shaft where he is drilling and blasting without pay, and the day before yesterday I went down with him, watched him drill, put in his charge of dynamite and lighted the fuse. Then we were hauled up in the bucket by these two men, got as far from the hole as possible and waited for the explosion."

"After learning the process of setting the blast yesterday I offered to set and fire it myself. Mason consented, and when the hole was drilled he came up, gave me the charge, and I went down in the bucket. As soon as I had lighted the fuse I called out to be drawn up. The windlass cracked, and I felt myself rising. When I was hauled halfway something above seemed to be caught, and everything stood stock still. Mason called down in a frightened voice that the windlass had broken, and he must go some distance to get a man to come and repair it. I called to him to pull me up by hand, but there was no response. I could hear him and one of his men discussing in loud voices what it was best to do."

"There I was, midway between the surface and the bottom, with the fuse sputtering below. I started to climb up hand over hand, but one of the men who had been left behind let me down as fast as I climbed up. I got back to the bucket exhausted and concluded to drop and put out the fuse."

The man looking from above drew me up far enough to make my drop certain death. I looked over at the fuse and saw that it was within an inch of the charge. I shut my eyes and waited to be blown into the air.

"I fainted, and when I came to was lying on the ground beside the windlass. Mason and his two men were standing over me laughing.

"You fool tenderfoot," he said, "there wasn't no charge in the shaft. I took it out and put in dirt."

"I saw it all—a hard joke to initiate a beginner into the mysteries of mining. It was some time before I felt like rising. I was dazed. Then I began to realize the enormity of these men's treatment. After that I began to get mad. The prisoner I got the stronger I got. Presently I got up and made a dive for Mason. His two men came upon me but I seemed to have the strength of Hercules. After beating Mason awhile I carried him to the shaft and threw him down. The two men by this time were frightened and ran. I then after them, caught one, gave him a drubbing, then caught the other and did the same by him.

"When I came to myself I feared that I had killed Mason. I went to the shaft and heard him groaning at the bottom. I put one of his men in the bucket and lowered him. He got Mason in it, and I hauled him up, then hauled the other up. That's all I have to say, Judge. If it is murder, 'make the most of it.'"

"Mr. Parkinson," I said, "you seem to be a very young man. How is it that your hair is prematurely white?"

"White," he said. "It's black."

I called for a small mirror hanging outside in the washroom and handed it to him. He looked at his hair with astonishment; then his anger returned, and I saw that he was about to spring upon Mason anew.

"Hold!" I cried. "I will give your tormentor the rest of his punishment. Thomas Mason, stand up. The decision of the court is that, while harmless practical jokes have such a hold on the people of this country that they can be weeded out such a joke as you perpetrated on this gentleman is attempted homicide. You go to state prison for three years, and you, Peter Galloway and Stephen Tucker, for one year each. The prisoner is discharged, with the thanks of the court on behalf of the community for whatever of punishment he has merited out to the perpetrators of this unheard-of cruelty, and the court only regrets that he didn't finish the job and save the state further expense."

Mr. Parkinson afterward became interested in various mining companies and got rich. Several times he came to me asking me to sign a petition for a pardon for the men who had maltreated him, but every time I looked at his white hair and refused.

THE MYSTERY OF SLEEP.

No Man Knows When the Moment of Unconsciousness Comes.

There is a remarkable fact connected with sleep which must not be overlooked. The sleep of a human being, if we are not too busy to attend to the matter, always evokes a certain feeling of awe. Go into a room where a person is sleeping, and it is difficult to resist the sense that one is in the presence of the central mystery of existence. People who remember how constantly they see old Jones asleep in the club library will smile at this, but look quietly and alone even at old Jones and the sense of mystery will soon develop.

It is no good to say that sleep is only "moving" because it looks like death. The person who is breathing so loudly as to take away all thought of death causes the sense of awe quite as easily as the silent sleeper who hardly seems to breathe.

We see death seldom, but were it more familiar we doubt if a corpse would inspire so much awe as the unconscious and sleeping figure—a smiling, irresponsible doll, flesh and blood, but a doll to whom in a second may be called a proud, active, controlling consciousness which will ride his body and his mental horse with a hand of iron, which will force that body to endure toil and misery and will make that mind, now wandering in paths of fantastic folly, grapple with some great problem or throw all its force into the ruling, the saving or the destruction of mankind. The corpse is only so much bone, muscle and tissue; the sleeping body is the house which a quick and eager master has only left for an hour or so.

Let any one who thinks sleep is not a mystery try to observe in himself the process by which sleep comes and to notice how and when and under what conditions he loses consciousness. He will, of course, utterly fail to put his finger on the moment of sleep coming, but in striving to get as close as he can to the phenomena of sleep he will realize how great is the mystery which he is trying to fathom.

A JAPANESE DINNER.

Plenty of Variety, but Too Much Salt For American Palates.

"I am afraid you won't like it," said the young Japanese baron. "You insisted, though, on a real Japanese dinner. So what was I to do?"

They seated themselves, the three girls and he, upon the green silk cushions placed on a parquetry floor about a little table a foot high. A Japanese servant entered with the tea, and the Japanese dinner began.

For first course there were sweet biscuits and tea—delicate tea of the April harvest, "first chop" tea, formerly served with cherry spoons and a poem for each guest.

Next came ushio, a salty soup, with which the national wine, called sake, was served in flat saucers.

The third course was a little raw fish, very salty and steeped in a sour and appetizing sauce. The guests, contrary to their expectation, found the raw fish no more difficult to eat than raw oysters. With this course went a salad of white chrysanthemums.

The elaborate fourth course consisted of boiled chestnuts and a paste of sharks' fins, quail roasted and bashed with preserved cherries and crawfish with eggs. These "hands" were all arranged decoratively on one large dish. The fifth course, also on one dish, was boiled bamboo shoots with soy, salted mushrooms and a cold boiled salmon and cold boiled perch, with pickled shoots of the ginger plant.

Next came a soup of seaweed, bitter, salty, decidedly good; next an assortment of nuts boiled in soy; next salted relishes; next delicious boiled rice, the grains as large as cherries, and, to conclude, tea again.

The young girls as they rose from their low cushions and limped about in the effort to get the stiffness out of their legs said that the Japanese dinner had been very good, really much better than they had counted on, but perhaps a little too salty for occidental taste.—Exchange.

A Shower Wedding.

"And you say when the heiress became the wife of the foreign nobleman it was a shower wedding?"

"I should say so. The bride wore a shower bouquet."

"Yes."

"And then there was a shower of rice."

"Mr."

"Followed by a shower of congratulations and old shoes."

"Well, well! And how did it end up?"

"Very embarrassing all round. The nobleman's creditors came around and presented a shower of bills."—Kansas City Independent.

As Good as the Zoo.

"Will you come with me to the zoo this afternoon?"

"No, thank you; I would rather stay at home. My eldest daughter jumps like a wild cat, my youngest shrieks like a parrot, my son is as early as a bear, my wife snags like a dog, and my mother-in-law, who is a veritable tigress, says I am exactly like an orang outang. So, you see, I have no need to go to the zoo to see strange creatures."

Rumor.
Rumor is a common noun, singular and feminine gender—except when it is used by stock gamblers to influence the market or by statesmen to influence politics.

Necessity is the grandmother of Rumor, because Rumor is the child of invention. Considered separately, its forebears are feminine idiosyncrasies and masculine busbodies.

The physical properties of Rumor are unique and interesting. It is more potent than fact, attains to a greater velocity than electricity, cannot be reduced to a syllogism, feeds on emotion, sleeps with one eye open, gathers strength with age and dies of punctured dropsy.

Rumor is like Santa Claus. We know its general tendencies, but not its specific origin. All we know of Rumor is from hearsay. No one has ever been arrested for stealing it, as the original owner is always unwilling to claim it.

Rumor is predatory. Its chief quarries are lovers (married or single), preachers, social leaders, policemen, politicians and people. Its bitterest foe is Rumor. Therefore Rumor should always be treated homeopathically. Its motto is: "Don't believe half you hear and forget the other half."—Lippincott's.

Drumming the Drummer.

In the Silver Bow club in Helena they used to play big poker. At the game one day sat Marcus Daly. George Hearst and J. B. Haggin, when there burst in a radiant New York drummer who had a two weeks' card to the players. He marched up to the table and politely inquired if he might take a hand.

"Why, yes. Come right in," said Daly.

The drummer pulled out a roll of bills and threw a $100 note on the table. "Let me have chips for that," he said grandly. He went to hang up his coat and hat. When he returned the bill still lay on the table.

"What's the matter, gentlemen? Ain't my money good?"

"Why, yes, to be sure," said Daly. "Hearst, give the gentleman one white chip."

Rough on the Dictionary.

Billy, aged twelve, took part in a debate on imperialism. His opponent made a point by quoting the definition of empire from the dictionary. Billy, nothing daunted, with all the air of Patrick Henry, rose up and said: "It's all right for my opponent to quote from the dictionary, but as for me I rely on the facts!"—Everybody's.

A Wife's Ready Wit.

A popular clergyman saw a lady about to call upon him and was anxious not to meet. So he said to his wife, "I'll run upstairs, my dear, and escape till she goes away."

After about an hour he quietly tiptoed to the stair landing and listened. All was quiet below. Reassured, he began to descend and called out over the balustrade:

"Well, my dear, you got rid of that old bore at last."

The next instant a voice from below rooted him to the spot. It was the voice of the caller! Then came a response which sounded inexpressibly sweet to him. It was the voice of his wife:

"Yes, dear, she went away over an hour ago. But here is our good friend, Mrs. Blank, whom I am sure you want to meet."

The Deacon Was Right.

A minister announced to his flock that he would have to leave them, as he was called to another field.

"How much more salary do you expect to get than here?" asked one of the deacons.

"Three hundred dollars," remarked the minister, with some hesitation.

"I don't blame you for going, but you should be more exact in your language. That isn't a 'call,' it's a 'raise.'"

The Young Minister's Impression.

A young minister was particularly anxious to make a favorable impression on his hearers at his first Sabbath morning service.

In the quietness of his study he suddenly hit upon a plan whereby this end would admirably be accomplished. His text for the following Sunday was "And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove."

To carry out the minister's great idea the Irish sexton was necessary, and Pat was sent for.

"Now, Patrick," said the minister, "on next Sunday morning I am going to preach a sermon on the text, 'And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove.' I want you to climb up on the belfry and let the Holy Ghost descend in the form of a dove."

the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove." I want you to climb up on the belfry and station yourself at the small trapdoor over the center of the church and open it just enough so you can distinctly hear every word I say and still not make yourself seen by any one in the congregation. About the middle of my sermon I shall repeat the text, 'And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove,' and you are to lower a live snow white dove, which I shall give you, down through the opening, and it will flutter through the air and be the means of making a deep impression on my hearers, who will readily see its connection with the text."

On Sunday morning Patrick departed with the dove, even himself deeply impressed with the great originality the young minister had displayed, and promising that he would faithfully carry out to the letter every wish.

The congregation was much larger than usual, and all were anxious to hear the young minister, who had come to them "highly recommended." They were all attention, and not a sound was heard except that which proceeded from the mouth of the eloquent speaker.

The middle of the sermon was reached, and the text was slowly and distinctly repeated, "And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove." The reverend gentleman lifted his eyes slightly, expecting to see the beautiful symbol of purity and peace hovering over the heads of his hearers.

But no dove. Pat had evidently forgotten the cue or had failed to hear the minister at the important moment.

So the text was repeated, this time a little louder, "And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove." He arched his eyebrows a little higher, but no dove greeted his vision. He began to grow impatient, and the third time he repeated at the top of his voice, "And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove." This time his eyes looked straight up as if in prayerful attitude, and he was rewarded, not by the graceful sway of the dove through the air, as had expected, but by the grimy, frightened face of Pat, who, in the agony of his failure to carry out his part of the plot, blurted out:

"Say, yer reverence, yer reverence, the cat eat up the Holy Ghost. Shall Ol send down the cat?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Asking His Pardon.

While Beckmann, the great comic actor, was playing at Berlin his friends persuaded him one day to imitate Frankel, the journalist and critic. He did it both in looks and manners so well that at the close of the act the audience called for Frankel. The offended critic brought suit, and Beckmann was sentenced to ask the complainant's pardon in the presence of witnesses at the plaintiff's home. At the appointed hour Frankel, surrounded by his family and a number of friends, was awaiting for the penitent. At last the door opened, Beckmann put his head in and asked:

"Does Mr. Maier live here?"

"Oh, no," replied Frankel, "he lives next door."

"Ah, then, I beg your pardon!" said Beckmann, who, having thus done penance, retreated quickly.

"Doctor," said he, "before you put the lid on my conversation will you answer a question?"

"Yes," said the dentist, selecting a square piece of rubber and snipping it with his scissors.

"Sure."

"Which side?"

"The inside," replied the dentist, snipping the rubber over the patient's lips.

If Jackson Was Alive.

In opposing a resolution in the Missouri house of representatives, which provided for an appropriate Jefferson City celebration of the anniversary of New Orleans and the honoring of the memory of Andrew Jackson, Representative Murphy of St. Louis spoke.

"Present day Democrats," declared Mr. Murphy, with fine fervor, "have little in common with Andy Jackson. And if Andy Jackson was alive today, Mr. Murphy earnestly concluded, 'he would be glad he was dead.'"

The Kind Captain.

Comptroller Metz of New York opposed a certain bill on the ground that it would accomplish nothing.

"That bill," he said, "would effect no more real change than did the kindness of the canal boat captain to the weary actor. After an enforced idleness of two months the actor was offered an engagement in a town twenty-five miles away on condition that he report for work that evening at 7 o'clock."

"Well, he patched up his worn shoes as best he could, pinned up his wardrobe in an old newspaper and set out along the towpath of the canal. But after he had covered some nine or ten miles the poor fellow's boots gave out, and a little farther along, footsore and weary, he gave up in despair and threw himself on the grass by the bank of the canal."

"As he lay there cursing his fate a canal boat hove in sight. The actor was seized with an inspiration.

"Captain!" he shouted as the boat drew near. "Pull up, captain! For the love of heaven pull up!"

"What?" inquired the captain as he stopped the boat.

"Captain!" pleaded the actor. "I've simply got to get to Quag tonight to play second heavy in 'The Pillars of Pittsburg.' Can't you give me a lift? I'll gladly work my passage."

"Right O," said the captain, with a kindly nod. "Lead the mule."—Everybody's.

HAVE YOU TRIED AJAX?

Ajax is the name of a cold cure that cures—a cure that does all that is claimed for it, and it claims a good deal, too. It cures a new cold within an hour and an old one after five or six doses. That's a strong claim, but local druggists say that it is without doubt the best cold cure compounded in Akron. An Akron man discovered it and in Akron the physicians are using it in their practice. They say it breaks up the worst cases of pneumonia. It's a good plan to keep Ajax in the house. It sells for twenty-five cents.

MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE

HAS SOMETHING TO SAY AND VERY MUCH TO THE POINT ABOUT THE STAGE ITS AUDIENCES AND THE CRITICS

AMUSEMENTS

BLANCHE WALSH.

The much discussed "Kreutzer Sonata" will be produced by Blanche Walsh at the Auditorium tomorrow evening. Managers Wagenhals and Kemper will use for this presentation the entire production and company as seen at the Manhattan and Herald Square theaters, New York.

The plot chiefly concerns a Russian Jew named Rafael Friedlander, his wife, his eldest daughter Hattie (in which role Miss Walsh will be seen), his youngest daughter, Golia; Natche, the family servant, and Gregoire, a musician. At the beginning of the play one learns that the oldest daughter, Hattie, has been secretly married to a Russian of noble family, but finding that the marriage will not be recognized by the church or the state, her husband, in despair, has shot himself. Her unborn child, therefore, she knows will be deemed illegitimate. To shield her disgrace her father insists that she marry Gregoire, her social inferior, and emigrate to America where the last three acts are laid. Gregoire accepts Hattie with the full knowledge of the facts, on account of the material benefits heaped upon him by her father. The second act presents the domestic situation six years later, and it seems that Hattie is subjected to every humiliation and cruelty on the part of her husband and the perfidy of her sister, Celia, who brazenly courts her husband's attention. Hattie is forced to submit, because she knows that the alternative would create a scandal which would fall on the head of her child, revealing the fact that he has no parentage. However, the new disgrace she feels would break her father's heart. How her sister and her husband and even her mother song writer, George Fletcher.

Managers Scott and Raynor have an excellent company of farceurs, who never fail to keep the audience in good humor throughout the entire performance.

THE CHOIR SINGER.

"A play to suit all tastes." This is what is confidently claimed for "The Choir Singer," a refined comedy drama by Carroll Fleming, which will be presented at the Auditorium for afternoon and night performance on Saturday, January 25. Combined with a heart story of strong, human interest, and ingenious plot and numerous scenes in which the comedy element has full swing, is a musical feature which makes the play unusually attractive to theater goers who have become tired of clap-trap melodrama and who have had a surfeit of gaudy so-called musical comedies.

The most elaborate stage setting has been provided by Manager W. E. Nankeville for "The Choir Singer."

Outside the wind howled and, tearing across Bryant Park, lashed sheets of rain against the casement windows of the apartment. Within, almost the end of the room, stood an orange tree in full bloom, contradicting New York and its climate by the yellow fruit that dangled lazily. And between the window and the orange tree branches sat Miss Ethel Barrymore, as patient as possible and even more obliging. She had settled herself in the corner of a couch and had fortified her comfort with cushions, and then she meekly—and despairingly—looked up at a reporter and asked, what this reporter has heard at every previous interview and what he expects to hear at every succeeding one:

"What shall we talk about?" "That is a very unoriginal beginning, Miss Barrymore," protested the reporter, "and you should not forget that your family and you have a reputation to uphold as makers of conversation, to say nothing of epigrams." "Yes, I know," admitted the actress, "but you don't expect me to talk as my father did. He was the most brilliant person I ever have known. As for poor me, I must merely content myself by admiring him—and I repeat my first question."

"Then, in desperation, let us talk about Shakespeare," suggested the interviewer. "You are going to play Shakespearean plays soon, and you must have some interesting things to say about him. He is, as you know, dead. Why not take his famous bones and rattle them a bit?"

"No, thank you, dear sir," replied Miss Barrymore with mock irony. "I leave that and all of that for Mr. G. B. Shaw. He is fully capable of it. He writes about this country with an ignorance that is monumental, and he probably approaches Shakespeare primed with the same preparation. I am humble and ignorant enough to esteem Shakespeare, and my appearance in one of his roles will be the beginning of the ambition of my life. I hope to appear as Rosalind next September, and if my fond hopes are fulfilled I shall devote myself principally to Shakespeare after that."

RAILWAY AFFAIRS

New Style Passenger Coach.

Auditor B. F. Freeble of the Monongahela railway, has been granted a patent for a new style of passenger coach which, if it can do all that is claimed for it, will reduce the loss of life in railroad accidents to the minimum. His arrangements of the car is such that the floor and seats will always remain in the same position, no difference if the car rolls over and over down an embankment, the interior of the coach being practically a rotary chamber set on substantial trucks. It is claimed for it that the new system of interior construction is perfectly practicable.

Working Time Increased.
The working time of the employees of the Pan Handle shops at Dennison has been increased from 34 to 42 hours per week. The Dennison Paragaph says that this is an encouraging sign of improvement in the business conditions of that community, and it is hoped that it will not be long until the shop employees are again placed on full time.

Use More Precaution.
Orders have been issued to trainmen on different divisions of the Pennsylvania lines to use extraordinary precautions to prevent the electric switches at interlocking plants from freezing. Engineers have been advised to keep clincher cocks closed and to see that no waste water occurs from the overflow pipes or injectors, nor from drip from the engine tanks produced by allowing the tanks to overflow when being filled. Railroad authorities have become aroused to the possibilities of costly wrecks caused by defective switches.

Will Visit Newark Soon.
Mr. G. L. Potter, third vice president of the B. & O. with headquarters in Baltimore, who has taken charge of the operation of the road since the resignation of General Manager Fitzgerald, is making a tour of the road, and visiting the principal places on the road. He will visit Newark in a few days.

Pennsy's Earnings.
In 1907 the Pennsylvania earned in round numbers $166,000,000, and of this sum $120,000,000 was paid out for expenses, leaving a net profit of $46,000,000. In the previous year the gross earnings were $148,000,000 and the net profit was $46,000,000 or the same as in 1907. So far, therefore, as the 50,000 persons who own the Pennsylvania railroad are concerned, the extra $18,000,000 which the company received in revenue was not worth to them a penny, as they did not profit by its distribution. More than half of that large sum, it is said, went to the larger wages paid to the big army of employees which operates the road.

Employment Bureau for B. & O.
Plans for an employment bureau to have exclusive charge of hiring men for the entire B. & O. system are being worked out by the executive officials of the company. It is claimed that the company will thus be able to keep a complete record of every employee and be better able to keep up the road's pension system for employees. Headquarters for the bureau will be maintained in Baltimore, but there will be branch offices at the principal points reached by the road. Data will be obtained from the various division superintendents.

Soldiers en Route.
Two special Pullman tourist sleeping cars were added to the equipment of B. & O. passenger train No. 7, due in this city Saturday morning. On board were 85 colored soldiers of the United States regular army en route from Fort Thomas, Ky., to San Francisco, Cal.

Train of Soldiers.
The second section of B. & O. No. 7, consisting of five sleepers and a baggage car, carrying 201 soldiers, passed through Newark Sunday at 8 a. m., en route to points in South Dakota and Texas. The soldiers are to take the places of those whose terms of enlistment have expired. They were infantrymen and cavalrymen.

PRETTY FEET.

How to Preserve Their Shape and Condition.
That a pretty foot is one of woman's greatest charms is universally conceded, and the woman who wants to preserve the shape of her feet and extremities must perform a few considerations more attention upon them than she is credited with doing, says the Chicago Tribune. To keep them trim and shapely hot baths should be resorted to. A frequent change of shoes is advisable, as it rests the feet and helps to keep them in good condition. After a long tramp in the shoes in warm water, after rubbing with hot turpentine or cologne. But, after all, the weekly pedicure should not be forgotten. It is just as important as a manicure. After a hot footbath all calluses should be treated with pumice stone, as one desires to prevent their return apply a plaster of chamois skin with a hole in the center. This will not only relieve, but cure. Toe nails do not need trimming as often as finger nails. They should be trimmed square across, kept at a moderate length and otherwise treated as those of the fingers.

The feet should be washed every morning. If it were made a daily custom the beauty of the feet would be better preserved, and there would be fewer corns, blisters and bunions. Should the feet be prone to dampness the stockings should be changed every day, and the soles of the clean stockings should be sprinkled with some good toilet powder.

Patent leather has a bad effect on many feet, and therefore women with tender feet should avoid it. Slippers of a much thinner leather, called patent kid, can be obtained. This looks quite as smart and does the feet far less harm.

How to Check Bleeding.

The country boy knows that the fine dust of the brown fungi he calls puff-balls will stop bleeding, says Harper's Bazar. When he cuts himself he hunts for one of these if the cut is not serious. If the cut is deep, it is wise to bathe it in warm water with carbolic in it or a tablet of chloride of mercury dissolved in the water. Carefully remove all foreign matter in the washing, and then, pinching the lips of the cut together, put on strips of adhesive plaster. Be sure to leave little spaces for pus to run out. This running of pus is a natural process and is not alarming unless persistent and the pus comes in unreasonable quantities. Sometimes the blood flows so rapidly that you cannot close the wound with plaster. If so, tie a bandage tightly above the wound before you attend to the wound itself. This will stop the flow of blood, and, nature having formed her clot, you can do your part with plaster.

How to Wash Ivory Ornaments.

Wash ivory ornaments well in soap and water, using a soft toothbrush to remove the dust from any fine work that may be upon them. Dry them by putting them in bright sunshine, keeping them constantly wet with soapy water for several days while they are in the sun. Finally wash and rinse them again. If the ivory is much stained, but not very deeply, rub the surface with finely ground pumice stone and water, moisten it well and lay in the sun to bleach.

MA'S NEW HUSBAND.

Everything points to a gay and merry time at the Auditorium on Thursday evening next, when "Ma's New Husband" will be given its only performance in this city. Before booking this attraction Manager E. T. Johnson had numerous proofs of its great popularity as a big laugh maker. This is a three act musical farce with most original story and extremely amusing characters. It is thoroughly up to date in the tone of its comedy and its bright music and popular song hits. The latter are spoken of as being among the best heard this season. Words and music are from the pen of the well known and it is presented by a large and carefully selected cast of Metropolitan players. In fact every necessary of this latest of the season's successes is not only first class, but artistic in every detail.

Wastes of Human Life.
There are four wastes of human life preventable and largely unnecessary. Highly salted and smoked herrings, haddock, mackerel or other fish are greatly improved if they are laid overnight to soak in a little sour milk. This effectively draws out the salt besides considerably improving the flavor of the fish and making it less smoked and highly seasoned.

INJURIES RESULT IN DEATH OF BAGGAGEMAN CHAS. BURKHAM

Was Victim of Wreck at Bellaire in Which Engineer Lipscomb and Several Others Lost Their Lives

Sad Death of Well Known Popular, Young Woman
---Funeral of D. W. Matticks Was Largely Attended---Other Deaths and Funerals.

After lingering in the shadow of death for several days, Mr. Charles Burkham, the well known and popular B. & O. railroad baggage master, died at his home, No. 4, Juliet flats, Sunday morning about 7 o'clock, of paralysis of the brain. On the 28th of September, 1907, he was badly injured in a wreck at Bellaire, in which Engineer Lipscomb and several others were killed, and had never fully recovered from that experience, and for some days has been suffering from a blood clot on his brain, which finally resulted in paralysis and was the immediate cause of his death. During his sickness he made a brave fight for life until the last, and for a time it was thought that he would come off the victor.

The deceased was born in Muskingum county, November 13, 1854, and removed to Licking county, when he was only 13 years old, and has lived in Newark ever since. In 1878 he entered the service of the B. & O. railroad company, where he remained almost continuously until the time of his death. He had only been confined to his room for six days. On November 24, 1881, he was married to Miss Clara H. Maerath, who survives him, together with two brothers, Harry, of Granville, and John Volney of Newark, and two sisters, Misses Adeline and Belle Burkham of this city.

The funeral services will be held at the First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and the funeral discourse will be preached by the Rev. Mr. Vernon, pastor of the church. The interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

MISS SAYDE E. EAGAN.

After an illness of consumption extending over a period of 16 months, Miss Sayde Elizabeth Eagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Eagan, 498 Hudson avenue, died at her home on Sunday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, surrounded by her heart broken family.

Miss Eagan was born in Defiance, and when four years of age her family moved to Garrett, Ind., where they resided until three years ago, when they moved to Newark. In 1901 she graduated from the Garrett parochial schools, and in 1903, was in the graduating class of the Ursuline convent at Tiffin.

After the family moved to Newark, Miss Eagan became rapidly acquainted and was one of the most popular girls in Newark society. Many friends were sorry to hear of her illness and are greatly pained that death should claim her in the flush of her youth.

Her parents and one brother, Darwood Eagan, and two sisters, Leontine and Gertrude, survive her. The body will be taken to Garrett Wednesday morning on B. & O. passenger train No. 7, where the funeral will be held.

Funeral services over the remains will be held at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Francis de Sales church, when requiem high mass will be celebrated by Rev. B. M. O'Boylan.

D. W. MATTICKS

Laid to Rest Sunday Afternoon with Impressive Ceremonies---Lodges
Attend Funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of David W. Matticks, who died Friday morning at 1 o'clock, were held at the family home, 201 West Church street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and were under the auspices of Acme Lodge, No. 554, F. & A. M., of this city, which turned out in large numbers. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and neighbors who gathered to do honor to his memory. The members of Newark Typographical Union, No. 69, of this city, of which the deceased had long been a member, attended the services in a body. Masonic services at the house were conducted by H. H. Harris, Worshipful Master of Acme Lodge, and were very beautiful and impressive. At the conclusion of the services at the house, the funeral cortege wended its way to the beautiful Cedar Hill cemetery, the Masons and printers occupying several cars. The pallbearers were Messrs. Thos. M. Jones, J. L. Worth, Walter Harrison, A. R. Pitzer, W. W. Windell and A. C. Hatch.

At the grave the beautiful Masonic burial service was read, Bro. L. C. Sparks, pastor of the First M. E. church, assisted in the services at the grave.

Flowers, these silent eulogies that speak for friendship, that tell of the esteem and respect of friends surrounding the form silent in death. Profuse and beautiful were the floral tributes. One of the most noticeable of the floral designs was a large pillow of delicate hued blooms, bearing the symbolic number "30," the welcome sign to the printer that his day's work is over, that "the end has come."

WILFORD M. RECTOR.

SUBWAY

AT SECOND STREET RAILROAD
CROSSING MAY SOON BE REALITY.

Engineer Wells Submits Blue Print to Service Board, to be Presented to Railroad Companies.

The Board of Public Service has had City Engineer Wells prepare preliminary plans and blue prints for the proposed new Second street subway and they are now on exhibition at the board room in the city hall. According to the plans the subway will be 30 feet wide, 13 feet high and the roadway will contain room for a car track, roadway and two passenger walks. It will start on the south side of Franklin street and have a ten per cent grade until it reaches the car tracks, after which it will have a five per cent grade up to Spencer street.

The building of this subway would be a great thing for the city, and the plans will be submitted to the railway officials, who will have to bear their share of the expense. The Service Board members think that the company will agree to the plans, but may possibly suggest some slight alterations. The matter of the subway will soon be taken up by the city, and if amicable arrangements can be made with the railway people the subway may soon become a reality.

NEW MEMBER OF SAFETY BOARD WILL BE NAMED

The city council will meet this evening in Mayor Atherton's chamber. The old council room is being completely overhauled and the painters and paper hangers are busy getting things in shape, hence the change of location for the meeting.

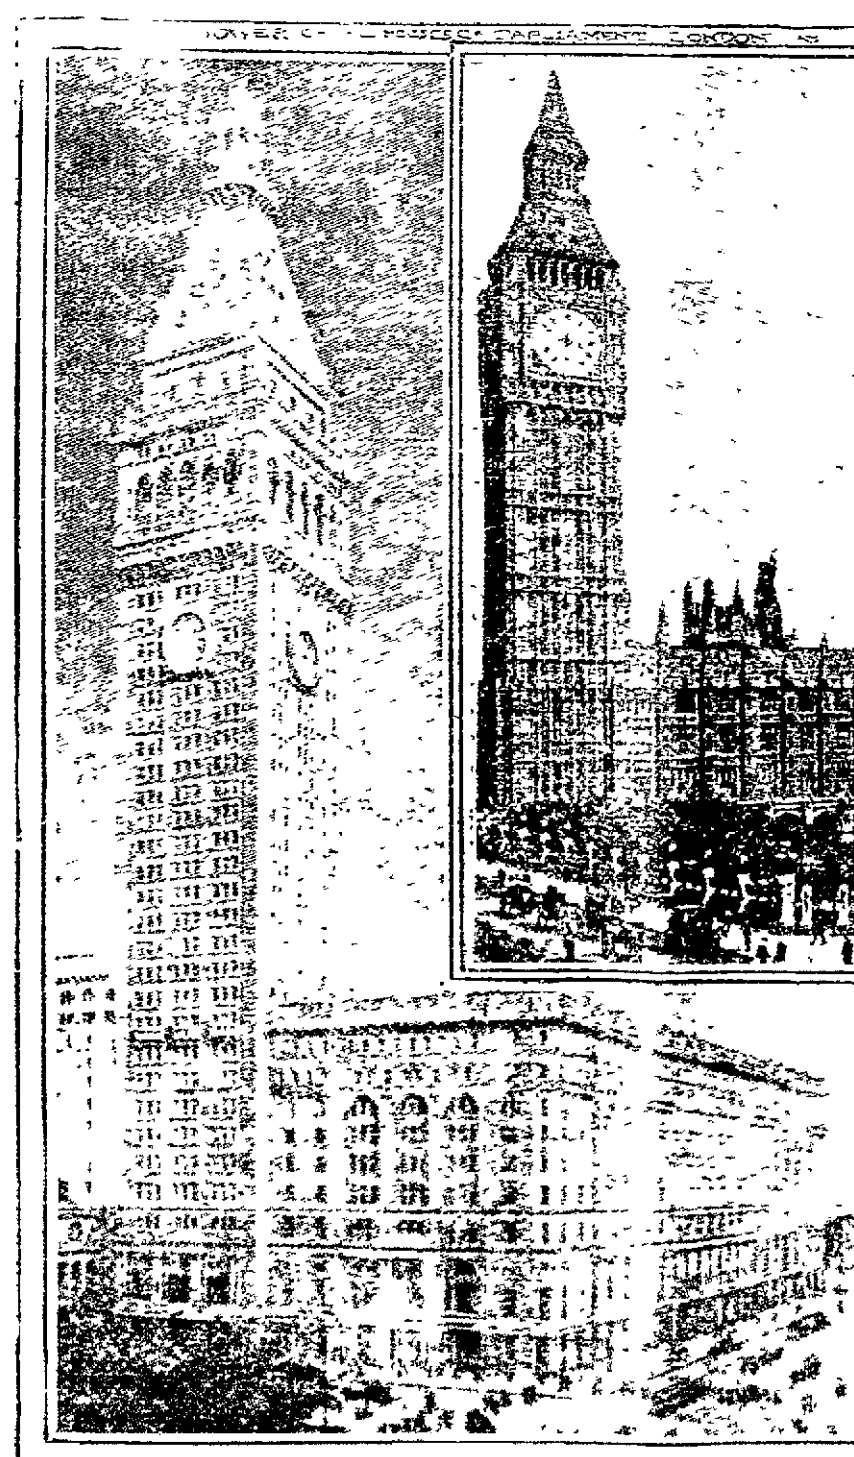

Mayor Atherton will name the new member of the Safety Board tonight, who will probably be confirmed by the council at once. There are a number of applicants for the position and His Honor stated that he did not care to give out the advance information as to who would be the recipient of the favor at his hands until it had gone to the council.

STORM OF PROTEST FROM PYTHIANS

A proposal recently made by the grand lodge officers of the Knights of Pythias to place children inmates of the K. P. children's home at Springfield out in private families of lodge men over the state has aroused a storm of disapproval in K. P. circles over the state. Knights are insisting that the children be kept in the home, which is one of the finest in the world. The matter will probably be dropped quickly as an unhappy thought.
